Kent: Ay, do, sweet nephew.
Queen: Brother, you know it is impossible.
Prince Edward: Why, is he dead?
Queen: No, God forbid!
Kent: I would those words proceeded from your heart.
Mortimer: Inconstant Edmund, dost thou favor him,
That wast the cause of his imprisonment?
Kent: The more cause have I now to make amends.
Mortimer(aside to Queen): I tell thee, 'tis not meet that one so false
Should come about the person of a prince.--
My lord, he hath betrayed the king his brother,
And therefore trust him not.
Prince Edward: But he repents, and sorrows for it now.
Queen: Come, son, and go with this gentle lord and me.
Prince Edward: With you I will, but not with Mortimer.
Young Mortimer: Why, youngling, 'sdain'st thou so of Mortimer?
Then I will carry thee by force away.
Prince Edward: Help, uncle Kent! Mortimer will wrong me.
Queen: Brother Edmund, strive not; we are his friends;
Isabel is nearer than the Earl of Kent.
Kent: Sister, Edward is my charge, redeem him.
Queen: Edward is my son, and I will keep him.
Kent: Mortimer shall know that he hath wronged me!--
(aside) Hence will I haste to Killingworth Castle,
And rescue aged Edward from his foes.
To be revenged on Mortimer and thee.

(exeunton one side Queen, Prince, and Mortimer, andon the other, Kent.)

SCENE THREE

Near Kenilworth Castle, Enter ~~King~~ Arundel, King Edward)

Arundel: My lord, be not pensive, I am your friend;
Men are ordained to live in misery,
Therefore come,--dalliance dangereth our lives.
King Edward: Friend, whither must unhappy Edward go?
Will hateful Mortimer appoint no rest?
Must I be vexed like the nightly bird,
Whose sight is loathsome to all winged fowls?
When will the fury of his mind assuage?
When will his heart be satisfied with blood?
If mine will serve, unbowed straight this breast,
And give my heart to Isabel and him;
It is the chiefest mark they level at.
Arundel: Not so, my liege, the queen hath given this charge
To keep your grace in safety;
Your passions make your dolors to increase.
King Edward: This usage makes my misery to increase.
But can my air of life continue long
When all my senses are annoyed with stench?
Within a dungeon England's king is kept,
Where I am starved for want of sustenance.
My daily diet is heart-breaking sobs,
That almost rents the closet of my heart.
Thus lives old Edward not relieved by any,
And so must die, though pitied by many.
O, water, gently friend, to cool my thirst,
And clear my body from foul excrements!
